DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. The claims do not produce a useful, concrete, and tangible result. A useful, concrete, and tangible result must be either specifically recited in the claim or flow inherently therefrom. To be useful the claimed invention must establish a specific, substantial, and credible utility. To be concrete the claimed invention must be able to produce the same results given the same initial starting conditions. To be tangible the claimed invention must produce a practical application or real world result. In this case the claim fails to perform a useful result. While a plurality of bitblocks is being generated and transformed, nothing is being done with these bitblocks. There is no claimed useful result to the generation and transformation.

Claims 2-4 are rejected for not having a tangible result. The claims are not embodied on a physical medium, and thus fail to perform a physical transformation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The term "rot transformation" is unclear. This term was interpreted to mean a "rotation transformation". If this is applicant's intent, Examiner suggests clarifying the meaning of the claims by changing "rot transformation" to "rotation transformation".

Claims 1 and 2 recite the limitation "said bitblock" in line 8. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claims.

Conclusion

5. Even though art is not being used in this rejection, no allowable subject matter is indicated.
